

Ashley Moody is a fifth-generation Floridian raised in Plant City, Florida, known as the Winter Strawberry Capital of the World. She is a three-time graduate of the University of Florida, where she earned her bachelor's, master's and law degrees. She also earned her Master of Laws from Stetson University.

Raised in a family dedicated to serving others, Ashley was inspired to pursue a career in justice and public service. She began her career at the law firm Holland & Knight, where she specialized in commercial litigation. Later, Ashley became a federal prosecutor in Jacksonville and Tampa, where she prosecuted cases involving drug trafficking, firearms, and fraud offenses.

In 2006, Ashley made history as the youngest judge in Florida when she was elected to serve on the Thirteenth Judicial Circuit Court in Hillsborough County at just 31 years old.

After serving as a judge for over a decade, Ashley was elected as Florida's 38th Attorney General and quickly earned national recognition for her leadership as she championed policies to enhance public safety, strengthen law enforcement, and crack down on violent crime. Throughout her tenure as Attorney General, Ashley earned a reputation as a fierce leader in the fight against unelected bureaucrats in Washington who sought to undermine Florida's policies. She has also been a national leader in protecting religious freedom and the sanctity of life.

During President Donald Trump's first administration, Ashley was appointed to serve as a Commissioner on the Presidential Commission on Law Enforcement and the Administration of Justice.

On January 21, 2025, Ashley was sworn into the U.S. Senate after being appointed by Governor Ron DeSantis.

As U.S. Senator, Ashley continues her mission to uphold conservative values, strengthen national security, and fight for Floridians. She is key supporter of President Trump's agenda and remains dedicated to America First policies that promote law and order, economic prosperity, and American sovereignty.

Ashley and her husband, Justin, a career law enforcement officer, have two sons, Brandon and Connor.